Russians Renew Their Attacks Along Eastern Transylvanian Front But Result Not Yet Known

Berlin Claims Capture of Pitesti, 65 Miles to North of Bucharest. German Raid South of Nevea Chapeau is Reported, Says British Report. While French Tell of Defeat of Attack at Le Pile Morie. Bulgarian Claim Capture of Giurgiu.

(By Morning Bulletin London Wire)
BERLIN, Nov. 29. (via wireless to Saville)—Pitesti, in Romania, 65 miles northwest of Bucharest, has been captured by General von Falkenhayn's troops, the war office announced in tonight's official statement.

The Russians have renewed their attacks along the eastern front of Transylvania. Reports regarding the outcome of this fighting are not yet at hand.

An increase in the artillery fire north of the Somme river in northern France, near Serre and Salmy-Sailland is reported.

On the Monastir front in Macedonia there has been no resumption of the fighting. The text of the statement reads:

"It is officially reported that north of the Somme, near Serre and Salmy-Sailland there has been no resumption of the fighting."

"On the Transylvania east front the Russians have repeated their attacks. Further reports are outstanding. Pitesti has been captured."

"On the Monastir front (Macedonia) quiet prevails."

British Report.
LONDON, Nov. 29.—"We required an enemy raid this morning south of Nevea Chapeau, and a hostile bombing attack east of Carancy also occurred, and the official statement issued by the British war office today said that the British had repulsed the attacks."

Hostile artillery was active against Carancy and the British were active against the German lines at the Somme. The British war office said that the British had repulsed the attacks.

Questions for Every Man in Canada Between Ages of 16 and 65 Years

During National Service Week, Probably Early in January, Postcards Will Be Distributed to Which Replies Are Required Within Week. Purpose of Queries, 24 in All, is to Ascertain Manpower of the Dominion For Vital Industries.

(By Morning Bulletin London Wire)
OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—There is to be a national service week in Canada. The date will be announced shortly by R. B. Bennett, M.P., director of national service. It will probably be the first week in January.

One of the features of the week will be the issuance of a card to every man in Canada between the ages of 16 and 65.

The card will have printed upon it a number of questions regarding national service and must be filled in and returned by all men between the ages of 16 and 65.

The questions number 24 in all.

Two millions of these cards will be issued, and it is estimated that the service of Canadian postcards will be required to issue them.

There is nothing in the cards which will be interpreted as an interference towards conscription, but of course the cards will be used to ascertain the manpower of the Dominion.

These questions were published yesterday in the Patriot and Post and the Dominion Post.

The director of national service, however, says he is disappointed because the questions are not the subject of the public discussion which was the purpose of securing the greatest possible publicity for the cards.

The purpose of the questions, as has already been explained, is to ascertain the manpower of the Dominion for the purpose of securing the greatest possible publicity for the cards.

The questions were published yesterday in the Patriot and Post and the Dominion Post.

It takes money to carry on a recruiting campaign. Apparently here, as elsewhere, the allowance made by the Dominion Government has not been found sufficient to meet the expenses. That being the case, the decision of the Provincial Government to contribute five hundred dollars to the recruiting fund of each of the five Alberta battalions now seeking reserves public approval. Two local battalions recently left for the front under strength. It is of course desirable that those now in training should have to go forward with ranks not filled.

In September and October Canadian casualties were double the enlistments. A situation of that kind might be due to any one of three conditions; that Canadians were shirkers; that most of the available men had enlisted; that the recruiting business had not been handled in a way to produce results. That Canadians are shirkers can hardly be claimed when 360,000 of them have voluntarily enlisted with very little of the Government leadership and inspiration that was considered proper and necessary to stir England up to the fighting pitch. The first of the three conditions is the only one that has certainly not been exhausted. There remains the third alternative.

Mr. McCurdy, parliamentary secretary, said that the military authorities admit that the policy of obtaining recruits under false pretences has broken down. He said that he was authorized to say that it was never intended to allow to go to the front intact, but that the military authorities were free to fill up the ranks of a new local battalion. He said that the military authorities were called upon to make reinforcements for units already at the front for other units in other theatres. He said that the military authorities were not to lose strength. Deception, of course, can only succeed while the deception is not known. He said that the continuous breaking up of battalions in England made clear that the battalion in Canada was only a unit. He said that it was not possible to delude men with the notion that the units they were sent to were the units they were to serve. The exposure of the ruse that had been adopted no doubt helped to break down the deception. He said that men do not like the idea of being treated other than as Canadians. He said that the military authorities are not to lose their lives in their country's cause. He said that the recognition of failure is the first step toward amendment. He said that the military authorities are the only of trying to continue the deception policy is ground for criticism. He said that the military authorities are not to lose, and that the man who is asked to join in future will be asked frankly whether he is asked to go to the front. He said that it is to be broken into drafts to fill up other organizations. He said that in the military authorities is not only the best policy, it is the only one that can produce results. The other has been tried and it has failed. He said that the military authorities are to be played out.

There are two kinds of wealth: the apparent and the inapparent. The man puts his money into the apparent. Another puts it in the inapparent. Another puts it in the apparent, or puts it in securities, or in real estate, or in the ability to pay taxes quite easily. That is the apparent. But that which the other man puts into a home, perhaps a great deal of money, and which the first inapparent receives as the rent left from the services the city needs, that is the inapparent property. Without the city and the services provided by it, he would not in most cases not have had the money. The man who in a country would be no safe repository for money or securities, and who would not have the protection maintained at the public charge, says: Why then, the man whose wealth is inapparent, has no money at all. One whose wealth, perhaps, has been invested in a country where the government is protecting and accumulating for other man's interests as well as his own. Taxes should be levied upon the man who has put his money upon their real ability to pay, not upon a section of the population which is not able to pay its apparent ability to pay.

developments in Roumania, increasing the difficulties of Allied leaders in Greece, in the Balkans, and in the Orient. Officially and potentially, Germany is not at war with Roumania. This according to London, from Athens to London, is to be helpful. The Roumanians, however, are under the threat of disaster which hangs over the country, having been deceived by Germany into a war, and stiffened their resolve to fight to the death. Allied operations in Macedonia until the Kultur Committee is ready to deal with these, are not to be undertaken. Roumania cannot point to the example of Greece to show their commitment. It is not a national advantage to all the Allies to have the Entente Powers, as Constantine's object is to see the end of the Russian Revolution at Saloniki while Mackenzie and Falkenhayn steam-roller Roumania. If he can accomplish this, he will have rendered his ally and his allies quite as effective by strategy as he could have done by force. The Russian declaring war on the Entente is perhaps—perhaps more. So far, the Allies have succeeded in his purpose, and the Russian Revolution has been done, and that this Royal Government will be dealt with as a flatterer will be dealt with as a flatterer. The Russian Revolution has been a singularly unfortunate phase of the Allied strategy. The only hope is that so much mischief has been done, and that this Royal Government will be dealt with as a flatterer of a vast Allied army held up in the Balkans by the Russian Revolution. The Russian owes his crown to the Entente Powers would be ridiculous words if it were not for the fact that the Russian has already ordered the Russians in prospect.

To the Bulletin: Can you tell me the inference and uses of the Union Jack and the ensign and the origin of the Union Jack?

The Union Jack is the flag of the separate national flag of the United Kingdom. It is a combination of the red cross of St. George, the national flag of the English, and the white saltire of Scotland, bearing the white cross of St. Andrew, the national flag of the Irish, and the red cross of St. Patrick in the canton. The Union Jack is the symbol of Britishness and is the national flag for a British subject, who is a citizen of the United Kingdom when the Union Jack is placed in the upper corner of a large flag with red, white and blue horizontal stripes, called the Ensign, which is used as a national flag of the United Kingdom at sea. The only difference between the Union Jack and the Ensign is that the ground in the former is blue. The ensign is used by ships of the Royal Navy.

Collection Pre-emption Tax.
To the Bulletin: Will you kindly one know whether taxes on a pre-emption, which was relinquished by the owner, are subject to the tax on the municipality? They collected by deterrent, after being notified of the sale, to the time when the selling season for taxes.

In answer to the above, we would say that in our opinion the municipality is not liable for the taxes they collected taxes on a pre-emption. The fact that the pre-emption has been relinquished does not affect the liability of the owner in regard to the municipality. It is up to the time the pre-emption was relinquished.

It is unworthy of public support or consideration to the detriment of the people. Anyway what has Mr. M. C. Cabinet to do with it? It can make such a howl about W. T. coming out? Their motive here is anything to get the attention of the association, and the means to get the attention of the people from corporations seeking jobs favors.

They have the two men. Then you are accordingly.

German Authorities Demand Further

Payment of Large Sums From Belgians

Paris, Nov. 22.—The German authorities have issued a decree imposing a further payment of 10,000,000 francs a month on Belgium, according to the terms of the armistice. This is in addition to the existing levy of 480,000,000 francs.

The provisional councils have been authorized for December 2 to approve the new imposition.

Captain George Roland Earnes, who led a company with great courage and initiative during the battle, was promoted to major and consolidated and maintained the position for 36 hours.

Major William Edgar Coleman was promoted to lieutenant colonel and maintained the positions.

Captain Harold William Foster led a company with great courage and initiative, organizing a system of runners who maintained touch with units in the flank.

For his gallant and heroic actions, three times leading parties with three machine guns to the front line, and three times carrying parties with three machine guns to the front line, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

The distinguished conduct medal is granted to:

1st Lt. Charles J. Stevens, who though twice wounded, remained a his post and carried messages to batt aided by a medic, he captured the ter attacks.

Sgt.-Major M. J. Dobie, awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal, com manded and handled a company with great courage. Although wound ed he remained on duty.

On 19.02.02, Dobie, on safety firing. Dobie saw it spark and im mediately snatched the shell from the gun. He was hit in the chest and the gun pit, shouting "take cover, and he hid it into a shallow where it exploded. Sgt. J. Feeney, although wounded in the right arm, led his platoon while throwing bombs with his left hand while the rest of the platoon followed. Feeney remained at his post rallying his men.

On 62-0905 W. Gough, fought with his machine gun, saving the situation at a very critical time.

On 62-0910 R. H. Jones carried several wounded men from the line under very heavy fire and rescued many wounded men.

On 62-0911 J. M. Labelle, for conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Although himself wounded he tended the wounded and dressed the wounded under very heavy fire with great front line heroism. He later organized the stretcher parties and was the means of saving many lives.

Sgt. Major R. L. Layton, attacked with his company two trenches and materially assisted in the capture. Sgt. Major J. P. Nuttall led his men with great courage and later, accompanied by an officer, captured two enemy tanks.

N. Pleard, led a platoon in an attack and later although wounded, remained at his post until he fell exhausted.

Sgt. G. T. Hunt, carried out daring patrol work, obtaining most valuable information. He was twice wounded.

No. 405677 D. Roy, led a party of men in the capture of a trench, and was killed over one hundred prisoners.

First Things

Polish Rebellions

The first blow in the great Polish revolution of 1830 was struck eighty-four years ago tonight, Nov. 29, 1846. Poland had been divided between Russia, Austria and Prussia, but the people, while they remained outwardly loyal, secretly nursed a bitter resentment. The Russian Czar, Nicholas I, had been given a fairly liberal constitution, providing for responsible government, but the Russian Poland had not been given a fairly liberal constitution, providing for responsible government. The Polish people, however, had a national flag, and a separate budget.

It is recognized that a matrimonial alliance is the most serious tie in life.

No Man Knows Everything

but any man can find out anything about the street railway of Edmonton if he continues to

The Street Railway is YOURS. It is up to you to know all about it. Don't guess about what you think you know. Guessing means mistakes—and mistakes mean money and often make you look foolish in the eyes of those who really know.

If you want to know anything, write and ask for information. Don't stand on the street and criticize. We are operating the street railway for yours and the city's interest. If you have an idea to help out the situation, take a minute or two of your time and write a letter.

It doesn't matter how much or how little you say. We want to please YOU and every citizen should take this as a personal invitation.

There is strength in unity. Co-operate with us and the City of Edmonton will grow stronger.
